Martin Macaulay
Senior Pastor

The election has decided who will govern us for the next three years. Each voter had to weigh each party's policies and each candidate's attributes. What policy areas were most important to you? Health? Education? The environment? Housing? Dealing with inequality? Crime? The response to Covid-19?

There are many important issues, and you probably didn't find one political party with all the policies you prefer. Elections require prioritising. What is most important for you, for your family and for the country? How do you decide on your priorities?

In recent months, since we don't have an associate pastor, I have had the unaccustomed privilege of taking a number of funerals. Funerals focus our priorities. What do I want my life to count for? I want my life to contribute to people to come to know Jesus as Saviour, Lord and King. This so easily slips off our priority list, and yet it is most important of all. As Lord and King, Jesus' rule is perfect and just (unlike any human government). I love to see the Lord's justice and compassion at work. As Saviour, Jesus brings forgiveness and hope – a fresh start in this life and life beyond the grave. No one else can give us that.

Think how much effort went into broadcasting the news about electing a human government. May God motivate and empower us to get the good news of Jesus' kingdom out to people. And may God help everyone realise how important that news is.
